SHERMAN IN GEORGIA—HOOD'S MOVEMENT AND FAILURE.

From the Times.

General Sherman has been maneuvering for nearly six months to get into Hood's rear, or, in other words, to go south of him. The whole campaign which has just ended in the capture of Atlanta, consisted of a series of attempts on the part of the former to get between Johnson and Atlanta, and Atlanta was not evacuated until he had actually succeeded in getting to the south of a portion of the Rebel army.

We claim to know what rebellion is—the height and depth, its length and breadth—and having, through changes wrought by the fortunes of war, been enabled to exercise more exercise free speech, we yield to the friends of duty not only to our whole country, but to those encroachments of rebellion at your own doors and your own firesides.

No pains will be spared by one leading Rebels to dislodge, dislodge, or overtake our citizens into their country, and to do so, so as thereby to render complete the downfall of our government upon the American continent; and we beg you to excuse us in thus placing the liberty to war, under the arbitrary edict of a military usurper, our only hope of release is upon the overthrow of the ambitious men who have thus enslaved us.

In addressing you, in reference to our grievances, we wish to be understood as appealing, not to the Chief Executive of the State of Illinois, but to the Governors of all the loyal States, to be on their guard against the insidious encroachments of rebellion at your own doors and your own firesides.
